Johnson City, Ill., January 25.—Thirty-seven men are dead, six seriously injured and badly burned, while eight others suffered burns about the head and body in a mine disaster occurring here tonight.

After hours of faithful work on the part of the volunteer rescue teams to aid the organized teams of Williamson county the last of the injured in the explosion at the East Side mine of the Crerar Coal company nine here this afternoon had been brought to the surface and are being given medical aid in hospitals here and in Peoria.

ZR-3, Sister Ship of Shenandoah, Ready for Trans-Atlantic Air Voyage.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, January 25.—The giant dirigible ZR-3, built here for the United States navy, is expected to sail on its trans-Atlantic voyage to America in April.

Reports are current that Captain Anton Heinen, German expert who was aboard the Shenandoah when she recently broke loose from her mooring mast at Lakehurst, N. J., will come here to assume the task of training the crew of the new airship. The ZR-3 is a sister ship to the Shenandoah.

Zeppelin engineers here are afraid public opinion in America may oppose the ocean flight of the ZR-3, but declare their belief that the trip will be perfectly safe. It is suggested here that the loss of the Dixmude was due to lack of experience by the French officers, and many doubt the reports that the ship was struck by lightning.

Vijenna, January 25.—The Jugo-Slav ministry of the interior has just settled a dispute which has been in litigation for more than 600 years, according to Belgrade dispatches.

The dispute was between five villages, which contested the right of grazing their cattle on certain lands. The village of Senica claimed that King Ostojica of Croatia gave it the right to the lands in the fourteenth century. Four other villages contested the claim.

For 600 years a perpetual feud has raged. The case has been constantly in the courts, and inhabitants of the five villages have carried on constant raids into the contested territory. The terms of the new Jugo-Slav decree definitely establish that the village of Senica owns the land.

Elimination of the mask by the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan and radical changes in the present form of government of the organization will be proposed when klansmen from all sections of the nation gather here on February 26 in response to the recent call for a national klan congress. The congress was called by E. Y. Clarke, imperial giant, for the purpose of bringing about drastic reforms within the order, and in event such cannot be accomplished, to discuss ways and means of disbanding.

"We are convinced that the mask has been abused and has put the order into disrepute, and we favor its immediate elimination," it was asserted by officials of Nathan B. Forrest Klan No. 1, which, it was announced, Friday, has assumed charge of preliminary plans for the congress and has raised a substantial fund to assist in defraying expenses of the gathering.

Plans Being Made.
The Nathan Bedford Forrest klan, the first klan ever organized and known in klan circles as the "mother klan," voted Thursday night to sponsor the assembling of the congress, and an executive committee composed of twelve local klansmen, headed by Judge H. Tom Knight, was appointed to arrange plans for the meeting. Judge Knight is secretary of Kamelia.

Notice of a motion for a new trial for Mrs. Ida Hughes, who was sentenced Friday to hang on March 14 for the slaying of her aged mother-in-law, Mrs. M. C. Hughes, has not yet been filed, Attorney Charles F. Weiss, of counsel for the defense, stated Friday night. Defense attorneys, however, stated definitely that such a motion would be filed at an early date.

In event a new hearing is sought no definite date can be set for fully three months, due to inability of court reporters to compile records of the case. At present, Assistant Solicitor General Ed A. Stephens stated Friday, reporters are at least two months behind in their recording, due to numerous lengthy trials in Fulton courts in the past several weeks.

Mrs. Hughes was sentenced to hang by Judge G. H. Howard Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock, almost 12 hours after the verdict was read Thursday night. Standing upright and with head erect, Mrs. Hughes received her sentence without outward signs of emotion. It was not until after noon Friday that she broke that composure which has remained throughout the battle waged for her life. Jail attendants stated that she had suffered a complete collapse.

Receives Flowers.
Though extremely hysterical, her condition was not thought to be serious. She was forced to retire to her cell. Flowers, coming from an unknown donor, were placed by her bedside.

It was not until Mrs. Hughes stood before Judge Howard that she knew her fate. She was spared the realization that she was to be hanged until actual sentence was imposed.

LOSS IN ROYALTIES

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Oklahoma City, Okla., January 25.—Further inquiry into the official acts of former Interior Secretary Albert B. Fall, as well as other matters already developed in the hearing, would be requested of the United States senate committee now investigating the Teapot Dome naval oil lease, under a resolution introduced today in the upper house of the Oklahoma legislature.

The resolution, submitted by Senator Conrad M. Feaguy, of Chandler, would ask the committee to investigate a charge that the former secretary granted to a low bidder a lease on Quapaw Indian lands in the northeast Oklahoma lead and zinc fields; and to determine whether money supplied by Harry F. Sinclair, head of the Sinclair Oil corporation, found its way into the campaign fund of former Governor J. C. Walton in 1922.

All possibility of a vote on the measure tomorrow was removed late today when the senate adjourned until Monday after placing it upon the calendar for early consideration without discussion. Members said it was probable a vote would be taken at Monday's session.

Quotes Current Rumors.
The zinc and lead mining lease was given the Eagle-Picher Lead company by the interior department at the expiration of the old leases on the property in August, 1922, under the act of December, 1921. The transaction technically was termed a re-lease.

The resolution quotes "current rumors" to the effect that the grant was allowed at a price less than that offered by other responsible bidders.

The other part of the resolution deals with the purported transfer by Sinclair of $25,000 in Liberty bonds to his friend, Colonel William Zevely, of Muskogee, Okla., as related to the committee by W. G. Wahlberg, Sinclair's secretary.

Recalling the public record of a meeting at this time between Colonel Zevely and Walton, the measure would ask the senate committee definitely to ascertain whether any part of the money was turned over to Walton's campaign fund.

Charge Million Lost Yearly.
During the campaign, Walton's opponents charged that Sinclair helped finance the gubernatorial nominee and the resolutions to the testimony given in the deposed executive's impeachment trial "indicating general rumors throughout the state that Zevely had delivered to Walton a sum of money" at the time of their meeting.

This meeting was held at a Muskogee hotel, according to the impeachment trial evidence.

STATEMENT FOLLOWS
DOHENY'S TESTIMONY

Steps To Annul Leases Negotiated by Fall To Follow Showing of Loss
by Government.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, January 25.—President Coolidge is strongly of the opinion that criminal action has been committed somewhere in connection with the oil leases consummated while Albert B. Fall was secretary of interior. Those who are guilty of criminal acts must and will be punished, it was stated on behalf of the president at the white house Friday.

This emphatic statement was made after the president had read the amazing testimony of Edward L. Doheny who confessed to advancing $100,000 to Fall while the latter was a member of the cabinet, and prior to receiving the California oil lease out of which a profit of $100,000,000 was anticipated. The president realizes that a man can not be convicted on rumor and he is loath to believe there has been any criminal intent, but nevertheless the evidence adduced thus far requires an explanation and an investigation and it strongly points toward criminal action somewhere.

To Press Probe.
Furthermore, if the government is found to have suffered by any of the leases, steps to annul them will be instituted. Despite the departure of Attorney-General Daugherty for Florida Friday, the department of justice, at the instant instruction of the white house, will press its own investigation and prosecute if a grand jury indictment can be obtained.

This development came just after another apparent falsehood had been pulled on ex-Secretary Fall by the sworn statement of Colonel James W. Zevely, personal attorney for Harry F. Sinclair, that he advanced Fall $35,000 on behalf of the Sinclair Oil company, which had already testified on oath that he advanced Fall $100,000.

So that it appears Fall received large advances from the two oil magnates who obtained the richest leases during his incumbency.

These disclosures are all the more amazing in the light of Fall's statement to the senate committee—in writing—one month ago: "It should be needless for me to say that in the purchase of the Harris ranch or in any other purchase or expenditure I have never approached E. L. Doheny or any one connected with him or any of his corporations, or H. F. Sinclair, or anyone connected with him or any of his corporations, nor have I ever received from either of said parties one cent on account of

To the Managers of Rogers' Stores

Fellows, listen, the first thing I want you to do this morning before the crowds begin to come in and grab the many GOOD SPECIALS for today is to run both your eyes down the column on the left. Get fixed in your mind all those big SPECIAL VALUES, and then, later, if you have a little breathing spell between customers, you can read over this part of the bulletin. Don't let any customers wait for service while you read this—it ain't that important, once you know all the special REDUCTIONS and VALUES in the first col. on this page.

If you will notice, I have placed little side headings in capital letters at the beginning of each paragraph so that you can see at a glance what I am talking about—and if that subject interests you more than some other, why, then, you can read it first. For instance—

FOUND—Had a little good luck a few days ago. While I was walking along one of our main highways I saw a little wad of paper money reposing on the sidewalk. In a sort of hesitating, and yet as fast a manner as I could, I stooped and picked it up. Just then I noticed another bill or two lying near. I grew suspicious. I thought some one was tempting me, or there must be a string to it. But I picked it up, too—the money, not the string—grinned casually like, and looked about me. It was a sort of a busy place, yet evidently nobody saw me. Now, that money belongs to somebody—not me. It wasn't a big amount, yet I thought about how much it would buy at a Rogers' store—a sack or two of White Lily flour, a pound or two of Golden Glow coffee, or other good things—and how glad, maybe, the person who dropped it would be to get it back, even though they didn't spend it at a Rogers' store. So this offer holds good for a few days—as long as I can carry it without spending it. If the owner will call me, Main 0141, and tell me when and where, how much and the kind, I'll be glad to restore it to him or her, and no questions asked and no reward wanted. I'm not foolin' about this.

LETTUCE—CELERY—I know you fellows are glad to see another fine lot of California lettuce and celery for you today. This is that same size and variety we had last Saturday, and which went so fast at the low price of 10 cents. But Joe Shields—you know, our produce buyer—he saved about 30, to 40 cents a crate on the cost of this for today (and Monday, if there's any left), and he says to me, "Give the public the benefit of that 1 cent a head. Tell the boys to sell it at 9 cents a head and 9 cents a stalk." One of these big heads of lettuce is a plenty for any average family. In fact, one lady said last Saturday, "It's just too much good lettuce for a dime," so you won't find many customers who will need or want more than one head. That's why we put our lowest price on the single heads. It's so much fairer and common-sense like. We don't want 'em to buy more than they need, and waste it.

PRODUCE ROW—And speaking of lettuce and celery and the like makes me think of Produce Row, where nearly all of Atlanta gets its best "garden truck"—where we get lots of ours. That's a wonderful place down there. I was up to the little banquet or dinner or whatever they called it at the Ansley a few nights ago, which they gave to a big crowd of western produce men en route to Jacksonville. It was a fine, jolly crowd, and everybody got their money's worth. The Mayor was there, and I learned from his speech that he used to be in the grocery business. I heard him make a speech to the bottlers recently, and he told 'em he used to be in the bottlin' business—but that ain't got no connection in any way with this banquet. If the Mayor keeps on going to meetings like that he will soon have been in every business in the world.

'AINT TELLIN' NOTHIN'—But the Mayor told the produce visitors that Produce Row was made up of good politicians—that they were the best political prognosticators in town—and that "as went Produce Row, so went the city, the state and the nation." (Laughter and applause.) There was some other good speakers there, too. I guess the reason they didn't call on me was because Gene Black, Atlanta's most useful citizen last year, and Paul Norcross, who ought to be this year, were there and asked to make speeches. But I'll tell the world everybody had a good time—and that's all I'm goin' to tell, except to say that Ed. Coolidge and Aubrey Milam and John McCullough presided, and what they can't preside ain't worth presiding.

EVAP. PEACHES—Have you noticed the big cut on these? Guess you have. You can't recommend 'em too highly. Practically peeled, fine California fruit—and they make up into the finest pies imaginable. You have noticed that the price runs from 9 cents to 11 cents pound, depending on the amount purchased.

POLITICIANS—Well, boys, the woods is full of candidates runnin' for office. No doubt they are steppin' into your stores from time to time—either they or their deputies or friends—handing you their cards asking you for your vote and influence. Treat 'em all nice. Don't get into any political arguments with 'em. Tell 'em you're glad to meet 'em, and suggest that even politicians have to eat sometimes. Get a promise from 'em, if you can, to trade at Rogers if they are not already a customer—but get it from 'em before the election. It's so much easier to get then—and maybe lots of 'em will keep their word afterwards.

REGISTERED?—And, by the way, are you registered? You know the books for registering for this coming primary on March 19 close on February 18. Even though your taxes are paid for 1923, you may or may not be registered. Unless you remember that you did register, or if you have moved your residence, better look into it and see. Every man ought to vote—and vote for the man he thinks best fitted for the office. This March primary is only for county officers, but there's lots of important places to be filled.

HOT CAKES—Make a little display today and Monday on Hecker's buckwheat and pancake flour. Put a sign on them. Let the public know about the reduction on these two good items. Only 12 1-2c package ought to make 'em go like hot cakes. And then let 'em have their choice of Nature Sweet Honey, or Domino Sugar honey, or Domino Golden syrup. Any of these sweetenings are fine, especially when accompanied with a spread of our fine A. B. C. butter. Complete the list. Do everything but fry the cakes for 'em.

COFFEE—You notice we list our Monogram coffee today at the regular low price of 24 cents pound. Of course, this isn't the finest grade of coffee. The price tells you that. It isn't the kind of coffee that the Walled Off Castoria hotel would serve. I expect they use coffee every bit as good as Seal Brand or Golden Glow. But still and nevertheless, at 24 cents a pound, Rogers' Monogram has its rightful place in the homes of thousands of our housekeepers, who appreciate its goodness at the price.

OTHER ITEMS—There's lots of other good things you can tell the trade about. They're listed in the special column. Such as Butterine at 29c; sliced bacon at 23c; a big broom value; seeded raisins for 9 1-2c; Krystal Kukes for 21c; and a cut on El Food Mayonnaise, and don't forget the values in the Purity Markets.

COMPLIMENTS OF—Almost forgot to tell—Manager Pitts, 5 Hurt St.: If Mrs. Emile Brettenbacher, 97 Hurt Street, drops into your store today or Monday present her with a 7-oz. jar of Duke's Mayonnaise, with Rogers' compliments.

Yours again,

PRESS HUDDLESTON, Adv. Mgr.

WEBER'S PURE HONEY

CLEAR AND COLD
PREDICTED TODAY;
WARMER SUNDAY

There will be clear skies over Atlanta Saturday but the temperature will descend again to the freezing point, said C. F. von Herrmann, official government forecaster. Friday afternoon. He added, however, that it was his opinion that the cold spell would not last over the week-end, and that there would be warmer days in store after the Saturday freeze. The mercury started on another downward journey Friday night, and was due to reach the freezing point Saturday forenoon, hover around there for a few hours and start its climb again.

Washington, January 25.—The storm central yesterday over southern Louisiana has advanced rapidly northeastward with increased intensisity and today is centered off Cape Cod, the weather bureau announced. General rains in southern and southeastern states have resulted. Mountain sections of south and middle Atlantic states may expect snow, the announcement says, along with northeastern districts. Cold wave warning have been issued for Tennessee, northern portions of Mississippi and Alabama and the southern mountain districts.

I BELIEVED DYING, ANOTHER IS HURT AS AUTO CRASHES

Savannah, Ga., January 25.—(Special.)—Emile Pfizenmayer, injured in an automobile wreck near this city at an early hour this morning, was said to be in an exceedingly dangerous condition tonight from injuries which include a fractured skull. He has little or no chance for life, it is said.

Miss Ruth Harris, his companion, who was also hurt, is not seriously injured. J. E. Lambertson, who was driving the car, which hit a post or tree causing the accident, is being held pending eventualities and investigation.

Miss Annie Belle Matthews, who occupied the front seat with the driver, escaped without even slight injuries. It is believed Pfizenmayer's head struck a tree.

PROGRESS REVIEWED AT MINER SESSION

Indianapolis, January 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—Thirty-four years of progress were reviewed at the birthday party at the United Mine Workers' convention here today. It ended in a round of tributes to the founders and to President John L. Lewis. Former International President John P. White made the chief address in commemoration of the birth of the union and when the vote in praise of the founders and President Lewis was moved by Robert Marshall, of Gloucester, Ohio, the former president asked all who concurred to stand.

Repeal of war-time addition and syndicalism laws and release of remaining political prisoners was demanded in a resolution passed today. The convention also endorsed industrial unionism "in principle" and recommended that delegates cooperate with the American Federation of Labor in bringing it about.

The resolution pointed out that amalgamation will mean that many unions now in existence will lose their identity.

European Sufferers In Need of Clothes, Local Official Says

Sufferers in devastated countries in Europe greatly need assistance in their distress, and those who can not make contributions in money can take part in relieving suffering in Europe by contributing old clothing, according to C. D. Montgomery, in charge of relief work here with headquarters in Central Presbyterian church.

Ministers in devastated regions of Europe are receiving salaries ranging from $5 to $30 a year and are compelled to engage in secular employment in order to minister to their congregations, Mr. Montgomery said. These people have no coal and suffer greatly during the winter, he said.

SLOT MACHINE OPERATORS FACE SERIOUS CHARGES

First indictments growing out of the crusade against "slot machines" were returned Friday afternoon by the Fulton county grand jury against S. G. Cohen, proprietor of a local fountain store, and S. J. Walsh, soda fountain operator. The two men were jointly indicted under charges of maintaining a gambling device.

It was charged that Cohen owned the machine which he placed on the soda fountain under management of Walsh.

James and Annie Cunningham were jointly indicted at the grand jury session on charges of burglary. They were arrested several weeks ago by police who found more than $4,000 worth of alleged stolen clothing, jewelry and household goods in their apartment.

James Snyder, of Tallapoosa, Ala., who was arrested several days ago by Detective Lamar Poole, head of the city automobile squadron, charged with absconding with an automobile belonging to a rental company in Tuscaloosa, Ala., was indicted on a charge of transporting a stolen auto mobile.

REQUEST CHURCH MEMBERS TO PAY MISSION PLEDGES

The importance of paying in full all missionary pledges made by Park Street Methodist church members will be brought home to the congregation Sunday. The fulfillment of the pledges will mean that the missionary enterprises of the church will not be hampered and that the debt of years' standing can be lifted from the church's accounts to announcement by church officials.

Dr. W. G. Cram, of Nashville, who served as a missionary for many years, will speak in the morning on the urgent needs of the mission fields. In the afternoon, Rev. C. N. Weems, of Korea, will tell of work accomplished in that field. Dr. S. P. Wiggins, missionary secretary of the North Georgia conference, will also make an address.

At 6:30 Sunday evening the Epworth League of the church will present a pageant, and at 7:30, Dr. W. A. Shotton, of Emory university, will speak.

Other special entertainments, including a pageant by the Woman's Missionary society of the church, a musical program and a social hour have been arranged.

FRANCO-CZECH PACT SIGNED BY MINISTERS

Paris, January 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—A treaty between France and Czechoslovakia was signed at the foreign office today by Premier Poincare and Dr. Edouard Benes, the Czechoslovakian foreign minister.

Although the treaty has been termed in some quarters a defensive pact, spokesmen for the Prague government have said it imposes no military obligation on either France or Czechoslovakia, providing only for "understandings" between the general staffs of the two nations.

Forecasts of the treaty have represented it as containing provisions for the maintenance of the status of Europe as determined by the treaties executed at the conclusion of France and Czechoslovakia in the economic reconstruction of Europe.

It has also been said that the treaty contains a statement of the two countries' decision not to allow the decision of either the Hohenzollern dynasty in Germany or the Hapsburgs in Hungary.

LIQUOR RUNNERS RESORT TO SKATES TO FOIL AGENTS

Detroit, January 25.—Run-runners who ply their trade across the frozen Detroit river, now are wearing ice skates to facilitate their escape.

Prohibition agents observed several runners near the American shore off Wyandotte early today, pushing what appeared to be a row boat. Attaching "ice creepers," a spike shoe attachment, they began pursuit. The run-runners, noticing the agents, straightened up and glided away on their skates, leaving the boat and liquor to satisfy the liquor agents.

The boat, the agents discovered, had two keen sled-runners attached.

Women of Britain Now Demand Share Of Medals, Titles

London, January 25.—With eight of their sex, ranging from a duchess to an ex-servant girl, to represent them in the house of commons, and one woman a member of the labor cabinet, British women are demanding that they share with men the honors as well as the cares of office.

Political "honors" which range from the granting of peerages to the presentation of medals, are usually announced at new year's and on the fall of a government. This year but two women were mentioned in the new year's honor list. One was a French woman, and the other, an American medical missionary in Madras, India.

All the big honors went to men. No honors of any sort went to British women, nearly 7,000,000 of whom vote in elections.

There were, naturally, many complaints. But now the Baldwin government has fallen, and a new honor list is due. Women are hopeful again.

It is not expected that women will be granted any peerages in their own right. But some of them may get the title of "dame"—given to Mrs. Lloyd George and other women for war services. It corresponds to the "detroit" that goes with a knighthood.

Detroit Contributes Over Half of Federal Taxes on Automobiles

GUARDSMAN GIVEN TERM IN PRISON

Hamilton, Ala., January 25.—Robert J. Lancaster was today found guilty of second degree murder and sentenced to serve eighteen years in the state penitentiary. With seven other members of company M, Alabama national guard, he was charged with lynching William Baird, a miner, during the Alabama coal strike in 1921 while the command was on guard duty at Towntey, Ala.

The defendant showed no emotion when the verdict of the jury was read. The punishment was fixed by the jury which had deliberated since 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Lancaster was a sergeant of his company and was alleged by the state to have been the leader of a mob of soldiers which took Baird from jail on January 13, 1921, and shot him to death a short distance from Jasper. Baird was in prison on a charge of having slain Private Morris, a member of company M, who previously had shot and instantly killed Rev. J. C. Northcutt, Baird's father-in-law, while the guardsman was on patrol duty in the neighborhood of the Northcutt home.

Expect New Trial Motion.
It is expected that counsel for Lancaster will file a motion for a new trial. Trial of the other defendants will take place immediately, each man having a separate trial, under present plans.

Joseph Key will be placed on trial next Monday, and Roy Patton's trial will begin next Thursday. Special juries venues to try these cases have been placed in hands of the sheriff.

The case was transferred from Walker county, where the lynching took place, to Marion county, on motion of the state, and has been one of the longest fought legal battles in the history of criminal procedure in Alabama, according to legal observers.

BROTHERHOOD LEADER REPORTED UNIMPROVED

The condition of J. H. Webb, prominent leader of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, was unimproved yesterday according to statements by members of his family.

He has been ill for the past two weeks suffering from congestion of the lungs and arteries.

BELLE BENNETT WIFE OF MACY

"I believe I am divorced, and I still believe I am," she added.

"My 14-year-old son is now with my father in Minnesota," she added in response to a question.

"I believe I am free to marry Fred Windmere," she also asserted.

Miss Bennett declared she knew nothing of unofficial reports from Providence to the effect that hearing on her divorce petition will not come up until March. She was unable to tell the names of her attorneys in Providence, saying that all her papers were locked in her trunk awaiting a trip east.

Announcement of her engagement to windmere caused Geller to make the charge that she is his wife.

Absolutely Penitent.

Her local attorney, Timothy Healy, said Miss Bennett had told him she was divorced from Macy, but admitted the last she could remember about the case was the making of the affidavit.

Miss Bennett today admitted she was absolutely penitent and faced with the alternative of selling her automobile to obtain immediate funds.

Managers have withdrawn their offers of employment, she stated, this scandal having been printed all over the country.

"Producers are afraid it will kill my drawing power," she asserted.

"Now they do not want me. I have wired men in New York and other eastern points who two weeks ago were anxious for my services, but it's different now," she asserted.

"I am an outcast, and until my name is cleared I will not be able to go on with my work."

Miss Bennett claimed today that Geller at one time had sought to induce Gloria Swanson, famed film star, to make a contract with him but the latter spurned his advances.

$250,000 BLAZE GUTS BUSINESS HOUSES IN MACON

Macon, Ga., January 25.—(Special.)—Four stores were gutted by fire and the stock in two others was badly damaged today. The total loss being estimated at a quarter of a million dollars. It was the most disastrous fire Macon has had since the Brown house was destroyed several years ago. Only one person was injured, F. C. Tidwell, a fireman, being cut by falling glass.

The fire was confined to a half block on Second street, between Cherry and Poplar streets, in the heart of the business district. The stores destroyed were the Taylor Furniture company, Atlantic & Pacific Tea company, Federal Bakery, Chain Market. A Piggly Wiggly store on either side of the burned buildings suffered considerable damage to stock. The buildings, one occupied by the Taylor Furniture company, was owned by the Isaac Harlan estate, and the A. S. Hatcher company building, in which three of the stores were located, was owned by P. D. Williamson. The stocks and the buildings were partially covered by insurance.

The fire is believed to have started in the basement of the Chain Market store, which was closed and in bankruptcy.

It is understood the owners of the burned buildings will rebuild at once.

Federals March On Three Fronts Against Rebels

Washington, January 25.—Mexican federal troops are advancing on three fronts against the insurrectionary forces, the Mexican embassy said today in a statement dealing with military operations of President Obregon's troops.

"Communication with Ciudad Victoria, capital of the state of Tamaulipas, has been restored," the statement said, "and there is no obstruction to federal forces advancing along the rail line to continue the offensive against the rebels in the portions of the Tampico oil fields they occupy."

On the Jalisco front the federals continue their advance against the broken up elements of General Estrada's rebel army.

The advance on the Vera Cruz front continues.

"On the 20th, rebel forces aided by the gunboat 'Progreso,' attacked the port of Salina Cruz. The federal forces were compelled to temporarily withdraw until the arrival of reinforcements under General Bravo Izquierdo. After a battle lasting 30 hours, he recaptured the port. Rebels who could not find shelter on the gunboat were dispersed and are being pursued."

"The Progreso, without fuel, is helpless and lying at anchorage outside the port."

Mexico City, January 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—Fighting in the vicinity of Acambaro, in southern Guanajuato, where rebels under Rafael Buena and Manuel Diez were opposing the advance of Generals Manuel Lopez, Eulogio Ortiz and Jose Amarrillas.

General Amaro is reported near Morelia, capital of Michoacan, cutting off the rebel retreat along the railway to the west, while another federal column continues to advance against Guadalajara, expecting to fight the rebels at La Barca and Ocotlán, north of Lake Chapala.

A clash is expected soon in the vicinity of Toluca, capital of the state of Mexico, the Guerrero rebel leader Romulo Figueroa, having reappeared at Zacualpan at the head of 1,500 men. The federal garrison of the latter place has been ordered to withdraw to Toluca, where 1,500 troops are concentrated. (Toluca is only 38 miles west of Mexico City).

President Obregon has arrived at Queretaro, east of Celaya, for the purpose of meeting Senora Obregon who is en route to Sonora.

The return of the national railways to the private owners has been postponed owing to the rebellion and the consequent needs for military transportation, according to a decision adopted at a general meeting Wednesday.

The rebels lost 150 killed in the 30 hours of fighting which resulted in the recapture by the federals of the port of Salina Cruz, according to advices reaching the capital.

Salina Cruz was attacked by rebel forces from the land and sea last Sunday, the gunboat Progreso bombarding the town. Commander Donato Bravo Izquierdo and his garrison of 200 men were forced to evacuation.

Atlanta Is Urged As Stock Center By Heinemann

Athens, Ga., January 25.—(Special.)—Speaking on the subject "A Stabilized Live Stock Market for the South," C. B. Heinemann, general manager of Atlanta Union Stock Yards, told today of development of the live stock industry in the south and suggested measures by which the county agents attending the farm conference here can help to put the industry on a more profitable basis for the producers of Georgia.

After showing briefly how the development of live stock markets in America had depended upon the growth of the railroads, Mr. Heinemann said good transportation facilities, an adequate supply of live stock to provide an ample supply for the central market and sufficient buying power to constitute a steady demand were essential to the success of the markets.

Atlanta Natural Center.

"Atlanta is exceptionally well provided in the matter of transportation, as a result of railway and highway development," he said.

"We can reach New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and other cities by a shorter haul through Atlanta than from Chicago or St. Louis."

"The thing for southern producers to do is to strive to reach the central market at a minimum of expense."

"Shipping associations should be formed in every county and in every community where live stock is grown. This enables the small producer to reach the market on the same terms as the producer of train loads."

Credit Banks Aid.

J. J. Wilkins, president of the Georgia National Bank of Athens, and G. D. Rice, of the Land Loan bank, also were present and informally discussed credit facilities for the farmer.

Pointing out that longer credit facilities than were formerly available are provided by the land credit banks, one of which he is helping to organize in Athens, Mr. Wilkins urged that similar banks be organized in all sections of Georgia and offered the benefit of his experience to county agents in helping to get the associations started.

Mr. Rice explained the operations of the land loan banks. He emphasized the long term credits provided under the system and urged the agents to dispel erroneous ideas that have developed regarding the purposes of

Grim Walls of Federal Pen

Cincinnati Millionaire and Associates Don Drab Prison Garb

New Home of Bootleg King

Marble walls of the Atlanta federal penitentiary Friday night housed George Remus, convicted bootleg king of the middle west, and eleven of his associates.

Remus was recognized by fellow prisoners for when Remus arrived in the prison in the afternoon, coming direct here from Cincinnati on board a private car, he was given an ovation to the full extent of prison rules and regulations. The silent waving of arms through grating windows.

The Cincinnati millionaire started service of a two-year sentence for having conspired to violate the Volstead act. He also must pay a fine of $100,000. And at the termination of this sentence will serve one year in a state prison in Ohio.

His associates, Harry Brown, John Gerhart, Charles Wissman and George Dater, will serve eighteen months and pay fines of $5,000 each; Clarence Bell, Ernest Brady, George Gillenbeck and George King, fifteen months' sentence and fines of $1,000 each; Harry Gardewing and Harry Bond, one year and one day and pay fines of $1,000 each; Elmer Roth, fifteen months' sentence and a fine of $500.

Given Prison Garb. Flashy diamonds, ultra-modern clothes, walking sticks and spats of the bootleg king gave way to the wool and cotton gray uniform of the penitentiary. A guard was on the face of each as the change was made.

Across town from the penitentiary Mrs. Imogene Remus, wife of the bootleg king, was a guest at a fashionable hotel. Mrs. Remus accompanied her husband to Atlanta, and at the terminal station, with tears streaming down her face, diamond ornaments hanging from her ears and a cluster of diamonds on her finger, left him. In her handbag were two diamonds, the property of her husband, given to her by him at the parting.

Tomorrow she will journey out to the penitentiary to see Remus, ascertain visiting hours, schedules and probably take her departure for Cincinnati.

Part of the time she indicated she will reside in their mansion, said to be one of the show places of the Ohio city, and the remainder near her husband in Atlanta.

Remus and his companions Friday night had not been assigned to any prison duties, nor had they been given numbers. They were "mugged" during the afternoon and given their first prison bath.

There is no millionaire row in this penitentiary, prison officials declared, nor are the wealthy recognized. Remus will be given "enjoyable work," the officials added, probably as a chemist, he having, it is understood, been a laboratory worker years ago.

Misses His Valet. "I'm reminded of my fate, but, oh, how I miss my valet," declared the bootleg king as prison garments were given him in place of civilian clothes.

Remus was said to have been a first prize prizefighter and while "I feel the stigma of having lost my citizenship, I will be a good soldier and serve my time," he added that he was in hopes of securing executive clemency.

The bootleg king and his companions are said to have operated on the most extensive scale ever known in the middle west. Remus was said to have owned distilleries and a road on "Death Valley Farm," owned by Dater, federal officers are said to have found the distributing point for bootleg whisky in that section. Those who share prison terms with Remus were said to have been in his employ.

Greeted by Pal. Clein L. Herbes, a member of the same band and who started serving his term shortly after sentence was imposed, greeted Remus and his associates when they arrived at the penitentiary. Having completed two-thirds of his term, he is said to be in line for parole.

Remus was in a jovial mood throughout the day's ordeal. He was amazed at the marble corridors of the prison. "Not bad, eh?" he exclaimed.

SEEK TO SUMMON FORD TO TESTIFY ON SHOALS OFFER

Committee Will Decide Upon Course in Executive Session, Chairman Kahn Announces.

Washington, January 25.—A demand that Henry Ford be summoned to Washington to discuss his offer for Muscle Shoals was made at the afternoon session of the house military committee's hearing by Representative Hull, republican, Iowa. He was joined in the demand by Representative Speaks, republican, Ohio, while Representative James, republican, Michigan, declared he saw no reason for the Detroit manufacturer to appear before the committee.

Chairman Kahn curtailed the discussion by announcing that the committee would hold an executive session later to determine whether Mr. Ford should be subpoenaed.

Union Carbide Offer. Representatives of the Union Carbide company of New York appeared today before the committee to explain the concern's offer which contemplates the manufacture of fertilizer at Muscle Shoals.

The committee was told that the company, with long and varied experience in the manufacture of electric furnace products, possesses what it believes to be a process for the production of the most desirable form of nitrogenous fertilizer, so far developed, and would be able to use existing facilities in nitrate plant No. 2 at Muscle Shoals.

Under the terms of the offer it was pointed out $1,500,000 would be paid out annually by the company for power generated at dam No. 2 and in addition a rental of $150,000 yearly would be paid for nitrate plant No. 2. The committee was told that 100,000 tons of fertilizer would be produced annually.

A. C. Morrison pointed out that in the Carbide company's offer, provision was made for cancellation of the agreement if the manufacture of fertilizer at Muscle Shoals by the company proved impracticable.

Secretary Weeks received today from representatives of three southern power companies and chemical manufacturers a formal proposal for the manufacture by them of fertilizers at Muscle Shoals under a 50-year lease of the nitrate plants.

The new offer is in conjunction with that previously submitted by the Memphis Power and Light company, the Tennessee Electric Power company and the Alabama Power company requesting a 50-year lease of the power projects at a rental of $100,000,000. These companies agreed to furnish 100,000 horsepower for fertilizer manufacturing and it is in connection with that provision that the chemical manufacturers, headed by Theodore Swanwick, of Birmingham, associated with Dr. Louis C. Brown and Dr. R. F. Bacon, fertilizer and air fixation scientist, that the offer today was made.

Attorneys Wells and H. A. Allen, who assisted in the decision, were not prepared to divulge what grounds motion for new trial would be made, but intimated that steps toward this end would be taken within the near future.

Killed on Sunday. The killing occurred in Egan Park just outside of the Hapeville city limits. It was on Sunday afternoon, December 30, that the elder Mrs. Hughes went to the home of her son with two Hapeville officers to search for some articles which she charged the younger woman had stolen. She was shot to death as she stooped over a trunk.

Defense was based on the grounds that the search was illegal and that Mrs. Hughes shot in protection of her home and person because the two officers were acting out of humor and ritual jurisdiction. She further claimed that she "did not remember the shooting."

The passing of sentence Friday brings to end the trial of the fifth woman in the history of Georgia to face the noose, and if the sentence is executed, will be the third woman to be hanged in the history of this state.

Condemned To Gallows, Woman Slayer Collapses

Mrs. Ida Hughes, who was condemned to die upon the gallows for the slaying of her mother-in-law, Mrs. M. C. Hughes, by Judge G. H. Howard in Fulton superior court Friday morning, Mrs. Hughes is confined to her cell in Fulton tower, hysterical and broken in spirit for the first time since arrest Sunday, December 30, a few minutes after she sent a bullet crashing through the aged woman's brain.

Other Agreements. Chairman Green of the committee pointed out, however, that with a margin still remaining for possible further cuts in the miscellaneous tax rates, the committee might yet alter the tax on motor trucks and passenger cars as well as raise the exemption on theater admissions to 75 cents.

The tax repeals and reductions voted today would become effective immediately on enactment of the measure.

Other taxes repealed included those on hunting, bowie and dirk knives, live and live birds, hunting garments, yachts and motor boats, carpets and rugs, trunks and valises, purses and pocketbooks, portable lighting and practice in the country. Taxes on produce exchange sales and on bowling and billiards was cut in half.

The committee agreed to cut by one-half the tax on all jewelry made chiefly of precious stones or metals and watches whose wholesale price exceeds $50. Watches of less value and other jewelry would be tax free.

THOU ART A GOD READY TO PAIDON, GRACIOUS AND MERCIFUL, SLOW TO ANGER, AND OF GREAT KINDNESS.—Nehemiah 9:17.

SEVERE PARTY BLOW.

The Teapot Dome scandal deepens.

It not only casts a black shadow across the republican administration, but it is liable to open the floodgate to investigations into the financial transactions of other high governmental officials—and, if so, just where the whole affair will stop is an unsolved problem.

Certain it is the Fall-Sinclair-Doherty scandal is now admittedly one of the most astounding known to the country in several generations; and, try as they may, the republican leaders cannot check its influence in the pending campaign.

The late President Harding was not to blame. He had no personal knowledge, it is assumed, of any financial or other relations between his southwestern senate colleague, whom he made secretary of the interior, and the oil magnates of the coast, whom Fall had been helping and was still further to aid to accumulate fabulous wealth at the government's expense.

President Coolidge is not to blame. He inherited, as the nation's chief executive, both the Forbes and the Fall scandals, and had no more to do with them than any other citizen who belongs to the same faith as the wily "borrower" and the "debauching" colonel.

But, in spite of these facts, the psychology of the whole ugly affair, at this opening of a pre-convention national campaign, places the administration-in-power in an embarrassing defensive, with every prospect of becoming a serious blow to party hopes.

The fact is the American people are aroused by this, and other, but lesser scandals, to a new determination that their public affairs shall be honestly administered in their interest, if it takes shake-ups from county officials to president of the United States.

This feeling may approach hysteria, but there is nothing so uncontrollable as a human stampede. They have a right to be aroused.

It will not be overlooked that when the republicans came into full national legislative authority in 1920, every act of the democratic administration was placed on the ridiron.

Smelling committees were appointed by the score, and for more than a year congress gave but little attention to anything but the endeavor to fasten some scandal upon the democratic administration, or high-up democratic official.

The country knows that nothing upable could be found.

It will not be overlooked, too, that the Lorimer and Newberry scandals were inside the republican party, as are the Fall and the Forbes scandals.

As unfair as the effect may be upon that party, as a great political group, the fact remains that to one guilty man who suffers there are scores of innocent ones who are thus made to suffer even the more.

Doherty "loaned" Secretary Fall $100,000, but for "good reasons" sent the sum in currency to him by his son.

That fact alone, it is alleged, establishes a circumstantial evidence of improper financial relations.

out." Fall is pitiable today as the central figure in one of the nation's ugliest scandals.

TONES OF THE MARKET.

The tone of the stock market has been firm the past week, despite several influences which many thought would bring a decidedly bearish feeling. One of these is the rail strike in England, the other the probe into the Teapot Dome oil lease.

The stock, securities and grain markets, as a general rule, react to events that affect the economic life of a nation. The rail strike, no doubt, has had a sentimental effect on the stock and cotton markets, while stock houses assert most firmly that the probe into the Teapot Dome lease has had nothing but a sentimental effect.

When the probe first got under way there was a break in Sinclair oil. This was immediately explained as sentimental reaction, and customers of various stock houses were warned not to become excited and throw their holdings in this company, or any other legitimate standard or independent into the market. "Avoid the mad impulse to sell," was the substance of this warning.

The argument of the stock houses is that should Senator Caraway's resolution to turn back to the government the valuable oil holdings leased to the Sinclair and Doherty interests be adopted, it will offset the reports that oil is being greatly overproduced, and with this large amount of oil in the ground, kept there for government reserve, there would necessarily be a tendency of all shares of crude to advance.

This sounded to many like a sound, sensible argument, and it did much to curb a feeling of hysteria that might have started among the holders of oil shares.

The general market is doing more than holding its own. United States Steel common went to 102 1/2 Friday; the independent advanced, while an independent company in its report of earnings declared the company had earned $5 a share more in 1923 than in the year previous.

A POLITICIANS' "PANIC."

The excitement, reaching almost into a panic, of Senator Moses and a group of republican war chiefs, abetted by Senator Reed, whose seat is on the democratic side, over the peace plan contemplated by Mr. Bok, is about the most astounding political buncombe, at the expense of the taxpayers, that this country has been inflicted with in a long time.

The plan that was adopted not only does not urge the United States to enter the league of nations, but specifically assumes that it will not do so. It only urges that this nation should cooperate with the other nations in preserving the peace of the world, and suggests what the late President Harding and the incumbent, President Coolidge, most vigorously urged—that we participate in the permanent court of international justice.

It does not go anything like so far as the recommendations of two former republican presidents of the United States.

In truth it does not recommend anything different from what the United States is now doing, in the Dawes commission, but it recommends a great deal more of the same unselfish cooperation looking to the economic rehabilitation of war-torn nations, by reason of which this country would become the greatest material beneficiary.

It even safeguards the feelings of the old irreconcilables in the senate by proposing that the league, as now organized, shall drop articles X and XVI; and that the United States shall not be committed to any force at any time, under any circumstances, except by act of congress, which is merely a reiteration of the American constitution.

Then why all the excitement? And especially in view of the fact that the plan is being submitted to the people of America in a newspaper and periodical referendum for their unbiased approval or disapproval.

Ballots are being distributed by the millions through clubs, civic and educational, and religious, and fraternal organizations, and so on. They are being printed in hundreds of newspapers. There is nothing to prevent any man or woman from voting against the plan.

Why didn't Senator Moses "investigate" President Harding because he favored practically the same thing? Or President Coolidge because he today favors practically the same thing?

The whole Moses-Reed panic is political absurdity, and is being waged more for personal political capitalization than anything else.

The plan has no party significance whatever, and any attempt to put it in that light is simply straining at gnats, while real domestic economic problems continue to sting the people like swarms of -asps.

It seems in vain for other authors to strive for the Pulitzer prize while the Gentleman from Indiana is in the writing game.

There invariably comes a time when oil can't calm the troubled waters.

Bits of N. Y. Life

BY O. O. MCINTYRE.

New York, January 25.—They sold a life-sized painting of little Jimmy Elliot, the other day at auction for a few dollars. It marked the closing chapter of a dramatic career in finance—a career that could not be reached fruition in hard-boiled Manhattan.

Jimmy was a dynamic young man who dreamed big dreams. He wanted to make business a poem instead of the prosaic thing it is. He flourished for a time with his Business Builders, Inc. He even dramatized the idea and had the play appearing on Broadway.

Jimmy was more like a college boy than a business man in appearance. He wore a cap belted, turning overcoats and dazzling shirts. He boomed optimism. In the floor that he occupied with his Business Builders, Inc., he had a big office building with five pianos.

For Jimmy started the daily routine of crass commercialism with song. His salesmen, lifted the next moment, he slipped and the wheels crushed his life away. The man's name is unknown.

From the Tundra Peaks.
William Steffen, arctic explorer and man of delightful surprises, now comes with the declaration that the "friendly arctic," where flowers bloom as if in the tropics, will in the future become the great source of food supply for the American continent. He thinks that by the breeding of reindeer herds, the Canadian government will be able to rival Argentina in supplying the world market with meat. He will be given a chance to demonstrate the value of his theory.

MacDonald and the Strike.
British railways are tied up through the strike of one member of the triple alliance, the union of locomotive firemen and engineers. The labor leaders have outlawed the strike, but the man pays little attention to the order to return to work.

The "right island" are on Ramsay MacDonald, the new labor premier. He is mobilizing an emergency fleet of motor to relieve the situation, that is only a half measure. In the meantime the railways are dreading his decisions. MacDonald, they fear, will decide in favor of the strikers. But psychology teaches that once in power, socialists of the MacDonald type lose their revolutionary ardor and responsibility of office. Lloyd George may serve as an example.

From a radical fire-eating Welsh attorney, he became the leader under whose banners the die-hard Tories were grouped during the war.

History Repeats.
The Russian bear escaped out of his cage in 1917. With the intention of eating the royalists, next swallowed the middle classes and the intelligentsia. These escapades are known in world history before the advent of the Lenin revolutions. But once there is no stopping the beast that has tasted blood. He is on the trail again. And Trotsky is the next in line to face him.

Robespierre was an active leader during the French revolution. He had no pangs of conscience to send the Girondists to the guillotine, but his day came at last.

DEATH AND SUFFERING FOLLOW HOTEL FIRES
Syracuse, N. Y., January 25.—Fire which broke out in the Hotel Hamilton today caused at least one death, injuries to a score and property damage estimated at $100,000. Two persons were missing today. Lou Clatterton, 67, a roomer at the hotel, leaped to death from the third floor. Most of the 40 guests, cut off from escape by fire, leaped to life nets or were carried down ladders by firemen. When August Lang started to jump from a window his hand caught on a nail and he hung until firemen rescued him.

Today's Talk
BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON COMPLAINING.
There is a most uncommon beauty and peacefulness about a herd of sheep or cattle grazing in some valley or open space. I have watched such a herd for hours and have always left with a higher sense of life's values.

I have never seen cattle quarrel among themselves. I have never seen one lamb at difference with its companions.

These dumb beasts of the field do not complain.

Human beings do most of the complaining in this world. And they have the least to complain about.

Complaining is not only an evidence of weakness, but a demonstration of it. The complainer advertises the fact that he is not strong, that he is afraid to face difficulties, pain, unpopularity.

One thing I have noticed—that those who really have some reason to complain, do not. Take the blind man, the cripple, the one who is thrown upon the world and who has seen yet faces bravely whatever comes, these are not the complainers.

The commonest complainers are found among those who have the least to complain about.

Theodore Roosevelt preached and practiced the "strenuous life." He knew human nature in a rare way. He knew that the one who continually serves and works rarely complains. And he knew that the mother with a large family, even where she had the best of everything, seldom complains.

Be too busy to complain. Be too thankful to complain. Be too honest to complain. Be too happy to complain. Be too good to complain.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

"Greater Love Hath No Man"
A little girl wandered away from her nurse in Central park, New York, the other day. Right out into the roar of traffic, where buses sped past and giant trucks lumbered their way through the maze of metropolitan traffic. She walked right in front of a huge motor. At that moment a man jumped from one of the benches. He bent and caught the child and his clothes were frayed. But he succeeded in throwing the little child out of the path of the commercial juggernaut. The next moment he slipped and the wheels crushed his life away. The man's name is unknown.

Can a Leopard Change Its Spots?
An old familiar figure steps in the limelight in Germany. He is no other than Field Marshal von Ludendorff. He says he wants to shine in "democratic politics." The general has been before the footlights on several occasions. First as master tactician in a policy of ruthless warfare, then as a royalist conspirator. Both appearances were sickly and ghastly. The marshal's fatherland needs peace and rest. If he knows what is good for Germany he should content himself with drinking a few more steins and writing some more memoirs "full of 'ifs' and 'would-haves-beens'."

New Alignments.
German crowds cheered the British consul at Clevé, who has been investigating French connections with the separatist movement in the Palatinate. French police appeared on the spot and routed the demonstrators by rifle-fire. They wounded four men. But a British soldier on guard farther down the street told a correspondent that he would like to leave his post and engage in a little shooting himself. "Every time I see a Frenchman, I spit," he said. There is a changing of sentiments on the Rhine, and Britain will assume a new role before long.

Birds of Disaster.
The birds of disaster are back in Europe. That is what people over there call the silk-tailed winter thrush. In the Baltic states it is held as a mark of historical record that the birds were about in 1872 just previous to Napoleon's march on Moscow. Their appearance has always been followed by famine, pestilence and war. So, though the year was over in 1914 the birds flew as far as the Belgian seacoast and in 1870 they were seen at Bordeaux, in the south of France. The year 1914 was over, but the birds have again been seen in Belgium and also in the Rghr. There are many such sources of superstition in Europe and they fill the inhabitants with fear and apprehension.

FRENCH MILITARY BUDGET IS BELOW THAT OF BRITAIN
Paris, January 25.—(By the Associated Press.) With the intention of countering the impression that France is exceptionally militaristic the foreign office today made public the budgetary estimates for military expenditures by the United States, England and France.

The figures show that the British empire estimates of military expenditures for the year exceed those of France by $20,000,000. France's estimated expenditures, however, are greater than those of the United States by $210,000,000. Expenditures are estimated on a gold basis, namely, counting the dollar at five francs and the pound sterling at twenty-five.

THREE BOY TRAMPS KILLED BY TRAIN AT EL PASO, TEXAS

His companions were Carl Sudath, 19, of Detroit, and an unidentified boy, about 16 years old.

STATE SCHOOL FUND TRANSFERRED FRIDAY
Funds totaling $523,428.49, representing about two-thirds of the balance due the Georgia common schools from the state for the past year, were transferred to the Superintendent of Schools N. H. Ballou on Friday.

That sum, $379,153.64 will be distributed to county school systems and $144,274.84 to the city school systems. The city of Atlanta will receive nearly half the amount allotted to the city system.

Does the government guarantee depositors in the case of the failure of a national bank?

No, though the government exercises close supervision over national banks—a fact that tends to insure safety to depositors—the government does not guarantee the safety of the deposits or make good any losses occasioned by failure.

How many mercantile failures were there in 1923?

18,721.

Are there more Smiths or Cohens in New York city?

How is liquid air produced?

Air is compressed to a high pressure. The heat produced by compression is removed and the compressed air allowed to expand through a valve. This produces cold. The cold of the escaping air is used to cool the incoming air, and the process is repeated.

How is the use of poison gas in warfare?

The first recorded use of suffocating gases in warfare was about 431 B. C. when sulphur fumes were used in besieging cities of Plataea and Belium in the war between the Athenians and the Spartans.

How is the wealth of the United States distributed?

Recently published figures of a statistical office of conservative views show that the "2 per cent" of the population own about 60 per cent of the wealth; the "middle class," 33 per cent, own 35 per cent, and the "poor" own 5 per cent.

How are dust webs formed?

There is no such thing as a dust web. So-called "dust webs" are made by ordinary spiders in corners where they collect dirt and dust.

How much butter fat is there in ten pounds of butter?

The law requires all butter to contain 80 per cent of butter fat. Therefore ten pounds of butter should contain 8 pounds of fat.

Congress Sits Breathless

Oil Scandal Eclipses Debate on Ice Cream Soda Tax Under Storm of Sensations

Washington, January 25.—Congress stood almost mute today before the breath-taking series of sensations that have welled from the silent subterranean oil reservoirs of Wyoming and California.

In the senate lands committee, now the legislative center of the universe, the trail of the oil inquiry swung away from the Doherty disclosures and back again to the Sinclair-Teatop dome imbroglio, with Colonel Zevely, Harry Sinclair's attorney, on the stand.

Teatop Dome was not mentioned in the senate floor, but only because the senate was not in session. From the house side the naval committee sought to poke a finger into the pie by asking Admiral Gregory to report how the Sinclair and Doherty royalties have been used by the government.

On the floor of the house there was a pretense of working on the interior appropriation bill amid a buzz handled like that before," the witness replied.

The senate committee summoned Archie Roosevelt, former vice president of the Sinclair Export Corporation, and G. D. Walberg, formerly personal secretary to Sinclair, to appear Saturday and explain further regarding the $100,000 in canceled checks which were alleged to have been paid to Fall's ranch foreman.

Roosevelt testified earlier in the week that Walberg told him he had seen checks for this amount, but Walberg declared Roosevelt had misunderstood him and that he had said "six or eight cows," not "sixty-eight thousand."

LEASES REVERSED
POLICY OF WILSON.
Washington, January 25.—Inspection of the oil deals made during the Fall regime reveals that the cream of the vast tracts of oil land set aside to supply fuel to the navy have been opened up to private drilling—a complete reversal of the policy of holding them intact, which was maintained by the previous administration in face of assaults by great oil interests eager to get at the rich supplies.

There are five naval reserves—three oil reserves and two of oil shale. The reserves embracing more than 200,000 acres, were withdrawn from homestead entry and private exploitation when they were discovered to have rich oil deposits. It was a matter of insuring a fuel supply for an oil-burning navy. The Wilson administration held that these lands formed a public trust and that no private drilling should be permitted except to supply naval fuel.

Fall Took Other View.
Secretary Fall took the opposite view—that the reserves were being drained by adjacent drilling and that they should be opened up and developed—with the government drawing a royalty from all oil produced. Hence his series of leases—the two chief ones being the Teatop Dome to Sinclair and the Elk Hills (reserve No. 1) to Doherty—which have stirred up such a sensation.

Reserve No. 1, embracing 32,000 acres in California, was withdrawn from public exploitation by President Taft in 1909, established as a reserve by him in 1912, and leased for drilling to E. L. Doherty in 1922, under a contract signed by Secretary of the Interior Fall and Secretary of the Navy Denby.

Reserve No. 2, embracing originally 30,000 acres in California, was withdrawn by Taft in 1909 and established as a reserve by him in 1912. Much of this reserve has been under heavy litigation by the Southern Pacific railroad, which claimed prior rights. The claims were recognized as valid by Secretary Fall. Claims to 2,700 acres by the Honolulu Oil company, were denied under the Wilson administration, but the case was reopened under Harding and the grant made.

Shale Reserves Safe.
Reserve No. 3, embracing the Teatop Dome field in Wyoming and estimated to contain 30,000,000 barrels of oil, was leased to Sinclair by Fall in 1922.

Oil shale reserve No. 1, embracing 45,000 acres in Colorado, is undeveloped.

Oil shale reserve No. 2, embracing 86,500 acres in Utah, is not developed. The two oil shale reserves are estimated to contain 1,000,000,000 barrels of oil, but the extraction from the shale is difficult and under present methods of production is not regarded as economical.

KLAN CONGRESS PLANS ABOLITION OF MASK

the woman's organization founded by Colonel W. J. Simmons, emperor of the clan. "Plans are being made," Judge Kight said, "to take care of several thousand klansmen representing every domain in the clan."

In discussing the action of the local clan in taking over the management and detail work in connection with the approaching congress, Judge Kight said:

"We feel that it is eminently proper and fitting that the 'mother clan' of the organization should take charge of the coming congress because the Nathan B. Forrest clan has several times in the history of the organization been the 'bull' that has saved the organization from destruction. Its membership includes some of the most prominent men in the city who are well acquainted with conditions now existing inside the clan—probably more so than any set of men in the nation."

New Publication.
Establishment of a weekly newspaper has been decided on by the executive committee, it was announced, and the first issue of the publication will be off the press next week. It is to be known as "The Fiery Simmons."

Self-government for each state, the election of a grand dragon for each state, and the election of the imperial wizard appoints dragons of the senate states, and dragons elect the imperial wizard, it is stated. The procedure was declared to be "undemocratic."

Nine Reforms Listed.
Nine propositions to be introduced before the congress for discussion, as outlined in the statement given out Friday, follows:

1. "Without discussing whether or not it was ever necessary for the clan to use a mask, we are convinced that the mask has been abused and has put the order into disrepute and we favor the immediate elimination of the mask."

2. "We favor the firm opinion that the organization cannot long survive under its present form of government. We favor abolition of the present form of government and creation of a democratic form."

3. "We favor local self-government for each state and the immediate election of a grand dragon for each state by local organizations of such state, who shall be the head of the organization therein."

4. "We favor a fair election of these dragons from the membership of the state and putting an end to the carpet-bag rule of government."

5. "We favor the election of great titans by the membership of their province and from the membership of such province."

6. "We favor election of the imperial wizard by an electoral college after a preponderant primary by local organizations."

7. "We favor making the rule that no member can be banished except upon written, definite, and certain charges verified, and after a fair and impartial trial by the membership of his local organization, he having a full and free opportunity to be heard, both personally and by counsel, if he desires, and thereafter the right to appeal."

8. "We favor placing the organization on such a high plane that men will be proud of their membership therein; the maximum of honor and undiminished made to feel so ill at ease that he will banish himself."

9. "We favor a federation of the several states and the maintenance of a national organization which shall have a well-balanced national program at all times, and carry on the work along the lines originally intended."

Congress Sits Breathless

Oil Scandal Eclipses Debate on Ice Cream Soda Tax Under Storm of Sensations

Washington, January 25.—Congress stood almost mute today before the breath-taking series of sensations that have welled from the silent subterranean oil reservoirs of Wyoming and California.

In the senate lands committee, now the legislative center of the universe, the trail of the oil inquiry swung away from the Doherty disclosures and back again to the Sinclair-Teatop dome imbroglio, with Colonel Zevely, Harry Sinclair's attorney, on the stand.

Teatop Dome was not mentioned in the senate floor, but only because the senate was not in session. From the house side the naval committee sought to poke a finger into the pie by asking Admiral Gregory to report how the Sinclair and Doherty royalties have been used by the government.

On the floor of the house there was a pretense of working on the interior appropriation bill amid a buzz handled like that before," the witness replied.

The senate committee summoned Archie Roosevelt, former vice president of the Sinclair Export Corporation, and G. D. Walberg, formerly personal secretary to Sinclair, to appear Saturday and explain further regarding the $100,000 in canceled checks which were alleged to have been paid to Fall's ranch foreman.

Roosevelt testified earlier in the week that Walberg told him he had seen checks for this amount, but Walberg declared Roosevelt had misunderstood him and that he had said "six or eight cows," not "sixty-eight thousand."

LEASES REVERSED
POLICY OF WILSON.
Washington, January 25.—Inspection of the oil deals made during the Fall regime reveals that the cream of the vast tracts of oil land set aside to supply fuel to the navy have been opened up to private drilling—a complete reversal of the policy of holding them intact, which was maintained by the previous administration in face of assaults by great oil interests eager to get at the rich supplies.

There are five naval reserves—three oil reserves and two of oil shale. The reserves embracing more than 200,000 acres, were withdrawn from homestead entry and private exploitation when they were discovered to have rich oil deposits. It was a matter of insuring a fuel supply for an oil-burning navy. The Wilson administration held that these lands formed a public trust and that no private drilling should be permitted except to supply naval fuel.

Fall Took Other View.
Secretary Fall took the opposite view—that the reserves were being drained by adjacent drilling and that they should be opened up and developed—with the government drawing a royalty from all oil produced. Hence his series of leases—the two chief ones being the Teatop Dome to Sinclair and the Elk Hills (reserve No. 1) to Doherty—which have stirred up such a sensation.

Reserve No. 1, embracing 32,000 acres in California, was withdrawn from public exploitation by President Taft in 1909, established as a reserve by him in 1912, and leased for drilling to E. L. Doherty in 1922, under a contract signed by Secretary of the Interior Fall and Secretary of the Navy Denby.

Reserve No. 2, embracing originally 30,000 acres in California, was withdrawn by Taft in 1909 and established as a reserve by him in 1912. Much of this reserve has been under heavy litigation by the Southern Pacific railroad, which claimed prior rights. The claims were recognized as valid by Secretary Fall. Claims to 2,700 acres by the Honolulu Oil company, were denied under the Wilson administration, but the case was reopened under Harding and the grant made.

Shale Reserves Safe.
Reserve No. 3, embracing the Teatop Dome field in Wyoming and estimated to contain 30,000,000 barrels of oil, was leased to Sinclair by Fall in 1922.

Oil shale reserve No. 1, embracing 45,000 acres in Colorado, is undeveloped.

Oil shale reserve No. 2, embracing 86,500 acres in Utah, is not developed. The two oil shale reserves are estimated to contain 1,000,000,000 barrels of oil, but the extraction from the shale is difficult and under present methods of production is not regarded as economical.

Beavers Finishes 35 Years' Service

As Atlanta Cop For Auld Lang Syne

It was 35 years ago today that James L. Beavers sipped his last brown sugar and corn meal, quit clerking in a grocery store, donned a blue uniform with brass buttons and a round-topped helmet to begin the career on the police force that has led him through practically every rank and assignment in the department.

The chief was silent Friday as to whether he would consider a pension. But friends declared that he had not changed his position in the least since he declared recently that he "did not feel like a pensioner," did not intend to accept a pension and would fight any effort to retire him on pension.

Councilman J. A. Beall, vice chairman of the police committee and one of the active leaders in the last year's fight to oust Beavers from leadership of the police department, said that the police committee would not meet again until its regular session February 8, when it would hold with trial of Beavers on charges of inefficiency preferred in February of 1923.

Alderman Jesse W. Armistead, chairman of last year's committee, which waged a determined but unsuccessful fight against the chief, was out of the city Friday and could not be reached for a statement.

GRAND OPERA FUND NEAR COMPLETION, OFFICIALS SAY
Only slightly more than $12,000 is now needed to complete Atlanta's guarantee of $125,000 for the local 1924 season of grand opera, according to figures given out Friday by directors of the Atlanta Music Festival association. These figures show that the sum of $111,800 has been pledged to date and it is felt that it is merely a matter of a few more mail deliveries for the balance.

The list of additional guarantors is as follows:
Previously reported: $107,000; Harry English, $500; J. H. Nunnally, $200; Frank P. Stockton, $300; Lindsey Hopkins, $1,500; Charles E. Boynton, $200; George M. Brown, $200; J. B. McCarty, $200; Arthur I. Harris, $200; E. S. Mansfield, $200; Alonzo Richardson, $200; H. Warner Martin, $200; E. A. Bancker, $200; Harrison Jones, $200; a friend $200. Total, $111,800.

New York, January 25.—The Universal Negro Improvement association announced today that Richard Hilton Tobitt would sail for England in the Aquitania tomorrow as its "ambassador to Great Britain." Carrying letters asking that he be accorded "such courtesies as are extended to other representatives of independent races and sovereign peoples."

Testimony by Atlanta real estate men and public utility experts regarding the physical valuation of the Atlanta Gas company's holdings contained practically all of the first day's hearing in federal court here of the company's latest effort to restore its rate to $1.05 per thousand cubic feet instead of $1.55 as fixed in 1921 by the Georgia Public Service commission.

The company is contending that the lower rate, now in effect, is confiscatory because it does not permit a fair return on actual value of investment. Public service commissioners stated that refunds now being made by the company would not be affected regardless of the decision of the court.

Attorney Cam Dorsey is hearing the argument as special master, under order of Judge Samuel Sibley.

The gas company is represented by the firms of Spaulding, McElwaine and Sibley, Colquhoun and Conyers; J. Linton Hopkins, J. Prince Webster and Robert G. Dodd, of Boston. Representing the public service commission in opposition to the increase are Judge W. E. Watkins, Commissioners James A. Perry, Walter McDonald and E. M. Price, the commission's rate expert.

Attorneys state that the hearings probably will consume most of the next week.

Leal Hielan Men Honor Sweet Robin

For Auld Lang Syne

The bagpipe skirled and the haggis was carried in proud procession when members of the Burns Club of Atlanta celebrated the one hundred and sixtieth anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, Scotland's greatest singer and "love's sweetest bard" at the Burns cottage Friday night.

Orators attested to the fact that Burns has not lost his charms and that the master chords of his music still rise strong wherever the English language is spoken. The dinner elaborate in its detail of Scottish dishes from oat cakes to bubbly jock, "hot coffee and cold water" was eaten while Piper Wallace played the joyous airs that once called the clans together and the marching tunes of the Scottish armies, which have no tune to order retreat.

"Songs an' muckle mair atween tanks" enlivened the gathering and brought back memories of the "land o' the leal."

Dr. Albert Douglas, of Washington, D. C., vice president of the Burns federation was the chief speaker of the evening and proposed the toast to the immortal memory of Burns, George M. Napier, attorney-general of Georgia, spoke on "Our Country."

Walter McElreath, president of the club, was in the chair. At 1 o'clock a luncheon was given by the officers of the Burns club in honor of Dr. Albert Douglas at the Piedmont hotel.

Problems Facing League of Voters Under Discussion

Branswick, Ga., January 25.—(Special).—Many interesting addresses were delivered at the second day's session of the Georgia League of Women Voters, which is holding its annual meeting in Branswick. Problems of the state league, the subject handled by Mrs. Elliott Cheatham, of Atlanta, was one of the features of the morning session. Mrs. Cheatham has the distinction of being the director of the national league and has given its problems close study.

Her talk was one of the most interesting of the meeting. Mrs. Fred W. Alstetter, of Savannah, chairman of the state organization, delivered an interesting report on "organization," which brought out the fact that the league is doing a vast amount of work in perfecting its organization all over the state. The remainder of today's session was devoted principally to the reading of reports of various standing committees.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon the entire league, including visitors and a number of local members, were guests of the Young Men's club at its weekly luncheon, during which each visitor was called on for a short talk. The ladies seemed to greatly enjoy attending and meeting with a man's organization, and most of the speakers so expressed themselves.

Tonight the visitors were guests of the local league at a delightful banquet tendered in their honor. The convention will come to a close Saturday with election of officers and selection of the next meeting place.

HEARTS AFIRE

BY MAY CHRISTIE
The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society.

Virginia in order to achieve radiant glow of youth, administers specially treated mud to her face. While she is thus adorned she is confronted, in the hall, by Mrs. Vanstarr's little girl, and Peter who has been playing with the baby.

INSTALLMENT 30.

A Cruel Thrust.
Peter Armstrong to have caught her in this awful plight!

Virginia could have screamed in fury and embarrassment. She could have slapped Lucia, whose startled cry had brought this man here, to witness her—Virginia's disgrace.

But of course he didn't recognize her. Her face was as black as any chimney sweep's. The mud lay half an inch thick upon her nose, her cheeks, her chin, her forehead. Every scrap of hair was dragged up tight under a hideous rubber bathing-cap.

Even her kimono—because of the recent mud-treatment—was her third heat, and a sight!

"Black-faced lady!" screamed little Lucia again, and flew like a frightened pigeon into the arms of Peter Armstrong. "Black-faced lady! Very angry with Lucia!"

Now if anything in the world could infuriate Peter Armstrong, it was unkindness to a child—particularly a delicate, helpless little creature like Lucia, who—rousing all his protective instincts—had hurried herself, sobbing and trembling, into his arms. He could feel her small heart throbbing like a terrified fledgling's in her thrice childless bosom, up against his coat.

And he had heard Virginia's hissed threat, and recognized the voice. In the first unreasoning moment, he thought the girl had done herself up in this guise, purposely, to torment poor little Lucia. But one square look at the astounding apparition made his anger die away, and a gale of sudden laughter took its place. Good heavens! not even on the music halls had he seen such a sketch! Never even on Halloween had any black-faced gusher looked as weird as this!

"Before he could say one word, or even try to soothe Lucia, the apparition had flung herself into the bathroom, locking the door violently behind it."

"Hush, Lucia! It's a little joke! Just a little joke! Come, stop trembling and crying!" Peter Armstrong carried her back to the nursery, stroking the curly baby head.

But Lucia—that passionate lover of beauty—wouldn't be easily comforted. She hadn't recognized Virginia's voice, and never for a moment conceived the appalling black-faced vision with the pink and blue and golden beauty of her mother's visitor.

"Listen, now, and I'll tell you a story." That magic charm never failed to work, as Peter knew.

"About a lovely princess," chirruped Lucia, the storm abating.

"With golden locks and big blue eyes," supplemented Peter in his charming, well-bred voice, smiling down at baby Lucia. How easily children's tears were dried! Evidently, grown-ups couldn't be the same. Their tears hid inwardly.

"Golden locks and big blue eyes," repeated Lucia rapturously. "Just like Miss Jenny." Then her little face clouded over. "But Miss Jenny always cross with Lucia. This princess wouldn't be cross with Lucia?"

"No, oh no. All right? (Old how children knew intuitively the character of grown-ups!)

"The black-faced lady cross with Lucia, too . . . just like Miss Jenny," prattled on the child. Her little brain was working, vaguely with an idea.

Peter didn't want the idea to develop.

AFTER AN OPERATION

Mrs. Wilke Couldn't Get Back Her Strength Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rochester, Minn.—"I had a very serious operation and it seemed as if I could not get my health back after it. I suffered with pain almost constantly. My sister came to help take care of me, and she was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nervousness and a run-down condition. She had me try some of it, and in a very few days time I began to feel better. In two weeks I hardly knew myself and after taking a couple of bottles more I was up and helping around, and now I am strong and healthy again and am still taking it. It is a pleasure for me to write this to you, and I hope that many other women who are suffering like I was will find out about your medicine. I will give any information I possibly can."—Mrs. JAMES WILKE, 933 E. Center Street, Rochester, Minnesota.

Remember, the Vegetable Compound has a record of fifty years of success among American women.

ically all foot troubles, the cause lies in bad shoes. Some makes of arch supports are useful. I would advise you, if you know nothing about them, to have a chiropodist fit them.

CLAIRE: The small white spots that sometimes appear on the nails are alime deposits due to poor circulation. You can bleach them off with a mixture of equal parts of pitch and myrrh, and you can so improve the circulation under the nails by using the buffer daily that you will overcome the tendency. When using the bleach apply it at bedtime and leave on nails overnight, remove next morning with oil.

M. E. H.: The epsom salts solution is helping to make your skin dry. Massage every night using a nourishing cream, one made from vegetable oils. The ice rub is used to close pores and stimulate the skin.

MARION: You can use a fine quality of almond oil on the skin if you feel that you cannot purchase a cream that you can depend upon; but be sure that the almond oil is not the substitute often offered as almond when it is only oil extracted from peanuts. If you would care to make your creams and will send a stamped self-addressed envelope, I will be glad to mail you formulas.

The trial consumed two full days and has attracted a great deal of attention.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

A Thorough Cleaning.
Never use a brass kettle that has been put away for any length of time without first cleansing it inside and out with salt and vinegar.

They Must Match.
Be certain that all linings, cords, ribbons, etc., exactly match when doing fancy work. All your work may be spoiled if one of the shades is just a little "off."

Mother's Furs.
Furs that are beginning to show wear can be put together without the worn places and used on the little girl's coat for collar and cuffs. It will give the coat a very smart touch with no added expense.

Basting Threads.
When removing basting threads, cut them every few inches. You are very apt to pucker or leave holes in the material if the whole thread is pulled through at once, as sometimes the knot comes along with it.

Cabbage and Sour Krout.
A small inexpensive incense burner is a joy in the apartment or small house when one is cooking things with strong odors. In just a few minutes the objectionable odor is gone and a refreshing Oriental aroma takes its place.

Snowdrift

SNOWDRIFT—a pure, rich, creamy cooking fat—is made by the Wesson Oil people out of oil as good as a fine salad oil. (You need oil that's good to eat to make cooking fat as good as cooking fat can be.) Then Snowdrift is packed in a truly air-tight bucket (air-tight—but as easy to open as winding the clock) to keep it as sweet and fresh as the day it was made—sweet and fresh all the way down to the bottom of the bucket.

Using Snowdrift in your own favorite recipe is the best way to find out how good Snowdrift is. Remember to add salt because Snowdrift is sweet, fresh, and unsalted.

MISS WHITFIELD'S recipe for SNOWDRIFT QUICK PIE CRUST

1/2 cup Snowdrift 4 tablespoonfuls water (approximately)
1 1/2 cups flour 1/2 teaspoonful salt

Sift flour and salt into bowl. Cut in Snowdrift lightly and add just enough water to hold together, working very lightly. Roll on floured board to thin sheet. Place on back of pie pan and bake until rich brown in quick oven. Remove from back of pan, place inside of pan and fill with any cooked filling. Toss very flaky.

SWAMP BREATH

By Robert Simpson.

And then, there came a pause. From his teeth in a wolfish grin, as a blood-chilling sound, something like the impatient whine of a bound just before the leash is slipped, burst from his throat, Barstow shuddered violently then suddenly stiffened—but did not stand erect.

And then, there came a pause. Barstow the Proud—the Barstow—lifted up his head. At least, he did so figuratively.

But steadily, inch by inch as it seemed at first, he drew himself up and up until, with a sudden final jerk, he started him, a sudden almost erect again.

CHAPTER XXIV.

A Gift From Muriel.

In the morning Barstow sent for Carney.

Carney came in almost boisterously. "Hello! Glad I'm glad to see you again. I was beginning to wonder—"

Standing beside a table with his back to the door, Barstow turned his head then, and Carney's flow of words halted with significant abruptness.

"Affect you that way, does it?" he queried. "I've come to the conclusion it is time I admitted that I am not as well as I should like to be. I have been sick for some time and, quite evidently, am getting no better. Look me over, if you please, and tell me what it is."

Carney drew a long breath. Once in a while, and again in a while, he said, "I'll admit you look worse instead of better," Carney said and spoke casually enough. "Which was not what I expected when I sent you away. Possibly a combination of jaundice and nerves. Get short of breath sometimes?"

"Sometimes," he said shortly. "And my nerves, I'm afraid, are in very bad shape. My eyes are affected rather seriously now and then and I—imagine I want to do things that I know perfectly well are impossible."

"Hallucinations—eh? That's nerves, of course, and while I can give you something to counteract that, rest is the principal thing—complete rest."

"Rest? Work is what I want—work and the strength to do it. If you are going to be a fool, Carney, get out."

"Then we will prescribe work," Carney said evenly. "Just a minute till I get my stethoscope."

Carney had made his examination of Barstow. The M. O.'s principal anxiety had been the heart which, to his great surprise, he found to be much stronger than he had believed was possible. Barstow had a chance of recovery if the drugs could be taken slowly away from him.

Carney did not tell Barstow the truth. To have him know that he was being poisoned would not do his nerves any good; and it was quite clear to the M. O. that the provincial commissioner was unaware of his real danger and consequently of the manner in which he was stimulating the drug. So he lied vaguely.

"Mrs. Barstow—is she quite well?" Barstow asked.

"Quite. Shall I ask her to come in?"

"No. My appearance might startle her," he explained lamely. "All right," quietly. "I'll let her know you have arrived." A short pause. "I met Miss Ellesmere and she wanted to see you just as soon as I'd permit it, and since there isn't any reason why I shouldn't, perhaps a piece of chess would be just the thing. God knows a man has to work hard enough playing that game."

Barstow laughed and actually meant it even though it hurt. "I always have a terrible time of it trying to beat her. Wonder if I could do it now?"

"Shouldn't be surprised," Carney conceded tactfully. "I'll ask Miss Ellesmere to come in when she can. Beeli somewhere handy?"

"Down at Macara's place, I think. Why?"

"Oh, I just wanted to instruct him about your chess and your medicine and so forth," Carney lied glibly, and went out to tell Muriel that her husband had returned a very sick man.

Muriel was seated at the windows in her bedroom when the doctor was ushered in and she heard what he had to say without a word. "My maid told me all about it," she said.

"Your husband, Mrs. Barstow, is very ill, and because of his—er—appearance, he considered your feelings. Knowing how susceptible you are to nervous excitement."

"Very well," coldly. "Mr. Barstow does not. I am quite sure, except you to hold a brief for him where I am concerned. Once before you meddled in my affairs and spoke to me as no one ever dared to do, and now you come in with your driving excuses on Barstow's account. You doddering old fool! Tell the Ellesmere woman he is sick! Have her play nurse to him and sing to him and ogle him across a chessboard. If Barstow wants to see me, he knows where I am to be found."

Muriel, seething with anger, careless of what she said or did, went back to her window seat to await, with no little impatience, Macara's answer to the note she had written him. Carney went along to Eileen's room.

"Barstow thinks a game of chess would do him good," the doctor intimated with ill-concealed hesitation. "But—I—er—I'd like to warn you that he isn't in the best of humor. I'd like you to understand that you must be very careful not to antagonize him in any way."

"I'm afraid you are not being very explicit, doctor," Eileen said quietly enough. "I have no reason to believe that I am likely to irritate Mr. Barstow. Can I see him now?"

"The proprieties in the Delta are permissibly somewhat lax," he said when Eileen had greeted him quite normally according to circumstances, "but since I am not sick enough to be in bed, I'm sure Miss Ellesmere would prefer the sitting room and I—that is—I'd rather talk," he added.

MY MOTHER SAID IT WAS AWFULLY CLOSE TO CHRISTMAS FOR ME TO HAVE TO BRING A PRESENT TO YOUR BIRTHDAY PARTY—

"It doesn't seem possible that tomorrow will be Christmas!" said Eileen suddenly, hoping for a safe topic.

"No. Santa Claus in white flannels isn't convincing. I'm afraid my jaundiced appearance is going to be quite a shock to a great many people. The Northern Nigerian contingent has arrived, I suppose?"

"Most of them, I think. But do you really think you will be able to hold that levee tomorrow? Why not let the D. C. do it?"

"Um—no, really. I feel quite fit enough for that," Barstow declared. "I look much worse than I feel and as I don't suppose Mrs. Barstow will take any part in the performance so soon after an attack of fever, one of us must appear."

He and Eileen finished speaking when Muriel's bedroom door opened. "Did you call me, Dickie?" Muriel asked softly as she entered. "I thought I heard."

Muriel stopped there. She forgot to bluff.

Words were impossible. Muriel tried to say something, but her pallet and her throat were dry. She gazed at the man who had been Richard Barstow as upon a loathsome accursed thing.

"Good heavens!" she gasped, as if the necessity for the exclamation point were tiresome. "You stay. Take him. I don't want him."

CHAPTER XXV.

Important Business.

Muriel turned and went indifferently back to her bedroom, closing the door behind her. As she did not lock it, nothing in the world except Eileen stood between her and death in a very nasty character in the succeeding few minutes.

Catching a sudden illuminating glimpse of Barstow's face, Eileen, entirely without thought, flung herself wildly between him and Muriel's door, pushing him with all her strength back into his chair again.

"Don't!" she gasped. "Don't look like that. You're sick and you'll hurt yourself and it won't do any good."

Barstow sagged into the deck chair like a dead weight, his breath whirling through his clenched teeth. But Eileen stayed. Sick with dread on Barstow's account, she sunk to her knees beside him, pillowed his head upon her shoulder and talked to him in a low, firm voice, until after long and terror-filled minutes of waiting, he breathed more easily and started in an effort to sit up.

"Thank you," he said in a hesitant whisper. "Perhaps if I were to—lie down for a while—"

She helped him to his feet; and he was grateful for her support until he reached his bed, where he lay for many more stormy and agonizing minutes, while Eileen sat beside him wondering if she dared leave him long enough to go for the doctor.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Two Ladies Make Up Their Minds.

Well, how did you find the patient?

Carney was so cheerful about it that Eileen was even more suspicious than before. She invited the doctor to come in and close the door, and did it in a quiet, purposeful way that spelled nothing but trouble.

"Mr. Barstow is asleep just at present, but he is very ill—a peculiar illness, too, that I do not even pretend to understand. From what I have seen of its symptoms, I should say it

Scope of Oil Land Leases

BY R. L. BARNUM.
New York, January 25.—Wherever banks or large corporations are located, boys were gathered together the disclosures at Washington. The congressional investigation and leases, for, the financial realizes fully the importance as well as financial involved. Here was the comment one well-known Wall street admits he made an unsecured non-interest bearing loan of $100,000 to Secretary Fall. Doherty's loan was made purely as a favor of friendship. A few months later the loan was made Secretary Fall's valuable government oil lease to Doherty's Pan-American Petroleum & Transportation Corp. Personally I am not trying to figure out why young Roosevelt understood some one to say $68,000 when the speaker explains that what he really said was six or eight cows or why one man should loan a friend $100,000 of an unsecured non-interest bearing loan. I am satisfied, however, that company. Cowen and Hall when this loan was made in actual cash carried from New York to Washington by a special trusted messenger in a hand bag the man who made the loan and the one who received it had something in the transaction which they were anxious to conceal."

Interests. Chesbrough, one of the so-called Standard Oil subsidiaries, jumped 17 points on a small turnover while Solar Refining and Standard Oil of Ohio closed 12 and 10 points respectively, above yesterday's finish.

Vacuum Oil moved up nearly three points and Continental, Imperial Canada, Prairie Oil and Gas and Prairie Pipe, about 1-2 each, while the other active issues improved fractionally. Buying of the oils was based on a further increase in the west and
